This postgraduate course will provide current information and focus on issues in Pediatrics dealing with the subspecialties of Pediatric Cardiothoracic Surgery, Neonatology, Behavioral Pediatrics and Pediatric Otolaryngology.

Objectives
At the conclusion of this activity, participants will be able to:

- Understand the current strategies for pediatric congenital heart surgeries.
- Comprehend the rationale of current recommendations for screening for infection in the asymptomatic newborn.
- Recognize the screening tools for sleep apnea and when to refer for specialty management.
- Identify the tools available for the detection and management of ADHD in the primary care setting.

Course Credits
This activity has been planned and implemented in accordance with the Essential Areas and policies of the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (ACCME) through MedStar Harbor Hospital.
